IMPORTANT NOTE:

We also use nationality adjectives to describe where people and things come from.

Country	Nationality
America	American
Brazil	Brazilian
Canada	Canadian
China	Chinese
France	French
Germany	German
India	Indian
Ireland	Irish

Italy	Italian
Japan	Japanese
Korea	Korean
Peru	Peruvian
Spain	Spanish
Vietnam	Vietnamese

And remember that adjectives do not have a plural form

- You don't say: We are happys
- You say: We are happy

The same situation happens with nationalities but there is something curious here.

We are American and we are Americans Are both possible but they are different.

We are American = We are talking about our nationality. Here you can also say "We are from America", and both ideas have similar meanings.

We are Americans = The word "Americans" here is a noun (a proper noun), not an adjective. Imagine you say We are doctors, or we are friends. These are nouns, not adjectives.
